

Reflections

Weekly Report 17

1/14 - 1/20

During this past week, my work consisted primarily of reflecting on Research Showcase and continuing to brainstorm for my final product. This week was very productive because it allowed me to learn many things about ISM and how my presentation could be improved.

Firstly, the Research Showcase gave me the opportunity to share my research and original work with numerous people from around the community. The Showcase also allowed me to notice certain things that could be changed by me for my presentation and original work to improve the way they look and consist of. For my presentation, my display board was slightly monotone and not eye-catching which discouraged some people from visiting my presentation, so my next goal is to make my board brighter and more appealing. Next, my original work should have been slightly more specified to a certain issue, so I decided that my final product should be primarily assisting or geared toward one certain group of people, such as small business owners that need help with managing finances.

In total, this past week was very important because it allowed me to learn some very important information about my presentation, original work, and possible final product, which will all be improved due to this past week.