

Brush Up

Weekly Report 31

4/29 - 5/5

During this past week, my primary focus has been on finalizing my final product as well as practicing my Final Presentation Night presentation.

In order to practice, a practice presentation for middle schoolers was recommended so my decision was to present to eighth graders about my topic. This presentation went very well and was very beneficial because it allowed me to implement some solutions to issues that were present in my Final Presentation run through in school. However, it was also a reminder that certain aspects of my presentation needed to be memorized in order to maximize professionalism and maintain a good connection with the audience.

My final product is being finalized, however, numerous aspects of my strategic financial plan had to be changed due to unlikely variables. This has forced me to create a slightly modified final product than originally planned. During this prior week, my main focus was on ensuring that my product maintained accuracy and effectiveness despite the unfortunate changes that needed to be added. During this next week, my goal is to completely finish my final product and begin inviting guests to my Final Presentation to display my research and what has been learned in Independent Study and Mentorship this year by me.